

www.natuarlistjourneys.com 866 900 1146 2012 Naturalist Journeys, LLC

Ecuador (1 day-pre-trip) & Galapagos Species List

January 7 - January 16, 2012 Greg Smith, Guide, with 15 participants

BIRDS, Galapagos

Galapagos Penguin - Isabel and Bartolome, we like them! Waved Albatross - Eight juvs on the ground & five adults flying on Espanola Galapagos Petrel - One as we motored towards Something Rock - Numerous, especially close to cliffs. Best look, Genovesa Galapagos Shearwater Galapagos Storm Petrel - One of many over Genovesa (Wedge-rumped) Maderian Storm Petrel - Hard to pick out, but they were off of San Cristobal (Band-rumped) Elliot's Storm Petrel - Seen at various locations, mostly in the east (White-vented) Red-billed Tropicbird - On Genovesa we got great looks - Mostly around San Cristobal, but a few in other areas Magnificent Frigatebird - On Genovesa, it was the most common as expected Great Frigatebird Blue-footed Booby - First seen around San Cristobal. Shallow water divers - Primarily on Genovesa, but scattered on other islands Nazca Booby - Primarily seen on Genovesa in both color morphs Red-footed Booby Flightless Cormorant - On Isabel & Fernandina nesting, loafing, feeding & mating Brown Pelican - On all islands that we visited - Sixteen in a small caldera on Bainbridge Rocas Greater Flamingo Great Blue Heron - On the beach at Bartolome and other locales Striated Heron - Both an adult and a juvenile along the beach at Santiago Lava Heron - A few seen on Bartolome and Santiago (James)

Cattle Egret - All over the highlands of Santa Cruz

White-cheeked Pintail - Good looks at the tortoise finca on Santa Cruz
Galapagos Hawk - Seen on every island where they were resident

Yellow-crowned Night Heron- Immatures and a couple of adults on Genovesa

Semipalmated Plover - Not common, but seen on three islands

Black-bellied Plover - On Fernandina with a group of Ruddy Turnstones American Oystercatcher - On Genovesa, Santiago and on Fernandina Black-necked Stilt

Wandering Tattler

Whimbrel Willet

Ruddy Turnstone

Sanderling

Red Phalarope Swallow-tailed Gull

Lava Gull Franklin Gull

Brown Noddy

Galapagos Dove Smooth-billed Ani

Short-eared Owl Dark-billed Cuckoo

Vermilion Flycatcher Galapagos Flycatcher

Galapagos Mockingbird

Espanola Mockingbird

Green Warbler Finch Vegetarian Finch Woodpecker Finch

Large Tree Finch Medium Tree Finch

Small Tree Finch Small Ground-Finch

Medium Ground-Finch Large Ground-Finch

Common Cactus-Finch

Common Cactus Finch

Large Cactus Finch

- One seen on Darwin Lake on Isla Isabella

- On rocky shoreline at Santiago and other islands

- On the beach at Playa Ochoa

- One on the beach at San Christobal

- On the beach at Genovesa & other islands

- On the beach at Playa Ochoa

- A few of us on the bow saw a flock of about fifteen - All over the place, very common on Genovesa

- Only 400 pair & we saw at least three of them, Genovesa

- Seen on two islands and in multiple numbers

- First seen in a feeding frenzies off of San Cristobal

- The dove species in the Galapagos

- Common on Santa Cruz in the highlands

- Four on Genovesa, all looking for a petrel dinner

- Seen well on Norte Seymour and less so on Santa Cruz

- Just below the twin craters on Santa Cruz Island.

- Seen on just about all eight islands we visited

- On a number of islands where it was common

- On Espanola where they were constantly trying for H2o San Christobal Mockingbird- Only one pair on our very first stop @ Playa Ochoa Mangrove Yellow Warbler- First seen at Playa Ochoa and then everywhere else

> - On Genovesa and other islands in the early morning - On the walk through the Darwin Research Center

- On our morning Twin Craters walk - Seen in the Darwin Research Center

- Seen a couple of times on the Darwin RC walk - Seen wen we walked the loop on Norte Seymour - On San Chritobal walking between the beaches

On San Christobal as soon as we landed

- On Genovesa, cracks the goat's head seeds

Sharp-beaked Ground Finch- On Genovesa in the morning walk

- On Daphne Major as we circumnavigated

- Genovesa on the early morning walk at Prince Phillips

- A gorgeous male along Gardener on Espanola

Total 106

Galapagos Islands 60

Other Wildlife, Galapagos

Galapagos Sea Lion

Galapagos Rice Rat

Marine Iguana

- On every island we visited

Galapagos Fur Sea Lion - First seen on Genovese, not as common as above

- Seen at the entrance to the lava tube on Santa Cruz

- On every island with Espanola being Xmas-tree color

Land Iguana - On Norte Seymour where they were all sizes

Lava Lizard - On every island we visited

Galapagos Snake - Seen on Santiago

Green Sea Turtle - Saw the Black form in many areas nesting on Bartolome
Galapagos Tortoise - These giants were everywhere in the Santa Cruz highlands

Black-tipped Reef Shark - We saw at least two swimming on the surface

White-tipped Reef Shark - Snorkelers saw a few of these swimming below them

Spotted Eagle Ray - Seen in the bay at Genovese

Golden Cow-nosed Ray - Two were seen at our anchorage at Espanola Manta Ray - Seen a few times jumping out of the water

Ecuador (1 day-pre-trip) to Alambi and Bella Vista

Guide: Xavier Munoz of Neblina Forest, with Greg Smith, Naturalist Journeys, LLC

Turkey Vulture - Seen flying over Alambi Black Vulture - Seen flying over Alambi

Variable Hawk - A nice juvenile was perched on an agave stalk

Black-chested-Buzzard Eagle- Seen soaring over the bano break on the way to Alambi

Eared Dove - All over Quito

White-tipped Dove - Again, all over Quito

- Feeding at some of the Alambi Reserve feeders Tawny Bellied Hermit Purple-bibbed Whitetip - Feeding at some of the Bella Vista Reserve feeders Speckled Hummingbird - Feeding at some of the Bella Vista Reserve feeders Purple-throated Woodstar- Feeding at some of the Alambi Reserve feeders White-necked Jacobin - Feeding at some of the Alambi Reserve feeders - Feeding at some of the Alambi Reserve feeders Brown Violetear Green Violetear - Feeding at some of the Alambi Reserve feeders Sparkling Violetear - Feeding at some of the Alambi Reserve feeders Fawn-breasted Brilliant - Feeding at some of the Alambi Reserve feeders Green-crowned Brilliant - Feeding at some of the Alambi Reserve feeders

Empress Brilliant - Feeding at some of the Alambi Reserve feeders
Rufous-tailed Hummingbird- Feeding at some of the Alambi Reserve feeders
Andean Emerald - Feeding at some of the Alambi Reserve feeders
Western Emerald - Feeding at some of the Alambi Reserve feeders
Collared Inca - Feeding at some of the Bella Vista Reserve feeders
Violet-tailed Sylph - Feeding at some of the Bella Vista Reserve feeders
Booted Raquettail - Feeding at some of the Alambi Reserve feeders
- Feeding at some of the Bella Vista Reserve feeders
- Feeding at some of the Bella Vista Reserve feeders
- Feeding at some of the Bella Vista Reserve feeders

Gorgeted Sunangel - Feeding at some of the Bella Vista Reserve feeders
Green-crown Wood Nymph- Feeding at some of the Alambi Reserve feeders

Red-headed Barbet - Feeding in some trees at Alambi Reserve

Toucan Barbet - Feeding in the trees at Bella Vista

Azare's Spintail - Heard during our outing to the cloud forest Chestnut-crown Antpitta - Heard during our outing to the cloud forest Tropical Kingbird - Two on a wire around Alambi

Purple Martin - Numerous individuals carousing around our plane in Manta

Brown-bellied Swallow - A couple of flocks at Pululahua Valley

Blue and White Swallow - Mixed in with the Brown-bellied Swallow flocks

House Wren - Seen and heard at Alambi Reserve

Gray-breasted Wood Wren- Heard at Alambi Reserve

Great Thrush - Seen flying and perched at Pululahua Valley

Masked Flower Piercer - Feeding at some of the Bella Vista Reserve feeders

Thick-billed Euphonia - Feeding on bananas at Alambi Reserve
Golden Tanager - Feeding on bananas at Alambi Reserve
Blue-Gray Tanager - Feeding on bananas at Alambi Reserve
Lemon-rumped Tanager - Feeding on bananas at Alambi Reserve
Buff-throated Saltator - Feeding on bananas at Alambi Reserve

Southern Yellow Grosbeak- Feeding on the hillside at the Equator Monument

Rufous-naped Brush Finch- Feeding on the ground at Pululahua Valley

Rufous-collared Sparrow - All over Quito and the outlying areas

Our Galapagos 2013 journey is scheduled for February 18-28, 2013

www.naturalistjourneys.com 866 900-1146 info@naturalistjourneys.com